These 304 Stainless 2200w weldless elements are designed to fit a 32mm hole inside the wall of your brewing vessel or boiler. It comes bundled with the power cord.

We do recommend using a MKII - Temperature Controller to run this element with the appropriate thermowell or temperature probe attachment.

These electric brewing elements are highly recommended for your HLT, or even for a HERMS or RIMS setup. Multiple elements may be required for larger volumes and depending on what temperature you are trying to achieve. If you are going to be using these elements directly in your mash tun, and will try to maintain temperature using the element, we would recommend getting a power control chip 3600w to modify the power output to the element. Too higher power directly in contact with your malted grain can cause scorching/off flavours as the temperature may not be evenly distributed and isolated purely around the element itself.

Element Length: approx. 300mm

Diameter: approx. 25mm

Thread: approx. 32mm

A stainless heat stick housing to help make a RIMS recirculating mash system. They have been made with TIG welded 50mm stainless pipe with 2 x 1/2" BSP female sockets at right angles in the top and bottom for the wort to flow in and out. On each end there is a tri-clamp end cap, one with a 32mm hole pre-drilled so it is ready to mount one of our 2200watt elements. The other end cap has a 20mm hole so it is ready to mount either a thermowell or bulkhead. This makes it easy to then use our temperature controller and pump to build your own re-circulating RIMS system.

Includes:

- 1 x RIMS tube TIG welded from 304 stainless
- 2 x Silicone beaded seals
- 2 x Tri-clamp clamps - 2"
- 1 x End plate with 32mm hole
- 1 x End plate with 20.5mm hole

Note: does not include bulkhead, temperature probe or element.
